Classic and Exotic Car Sales Market Survey

The classic and exotic car market is shifting. While the overall data indicates a market decline, a closer examination reveals that online sales are showing steady growth as live auctions are experiencing a seasonal dip. The choice of where to sell your car is just as important as when and how you do it. Check out the Market Report to stay on top of the insights you need to make informed decisions on your next purchase or sale.

Sold Listing in September Last 6 Years

Each month, "Flips" and "Flops," are tracked, defined as cars with documented previous sales. This enables you to calculate the net gain or loss and the time elapsed since the last sale. While some purists argue that a genuine Flip/Flop occurs only within a 12-month timeframe from the previous sale, we believe this list offers entertainment and valuable insights that a narrower window would overlook. Admittedly, it is plausible that cars have changed hands in private transactions between these public listings; nonetheless, this data provides valuable insights into which cars have realized significant gains or losses compared to their previous sales. Enjoy this data at your own discretion
